than you, for a community to be a part of, a place founded on truth and love, a place to worship the King of Kings, the Lord of Lords, and the Son of God. Welcome to Founded in Truth, where we're more than just a fellowship. We're a family, so welcome home. All right, good to go. So guys, most of us celebrated Passover last night. And how was it? Was it good? Did everyone have a good Seder? Super good to have family. I know we wanted to do a corporate Passover this year. Logistically, it didn't work out. But, you know, having it at home with family and friends, and hopefully some of you guys invited people over and made it like a big shindig, as it's supposed to be. Hopefully it was a blessing for sure. I'm so sorry. I'm marking my Bible here. And so today, we are going to talk about, guess what theme we're going to talk about? We're going to talk about Passover, right? And as we discussed last time we met, Passover is kind of a big deal in the biblical text and the biblical narrative. I would assert the Passover event is the foundation for the entirety of the narrative of Israel, the story of Israel in the Old Testament and the New Testament. Because as we will see, when Yeshua sits down at his last supper, everything about his death, he explains through the meal of the lamb, which is just amazing. And, you know, we start off in Genesis and we have the narrative of Abraham and all of these things leading up to Passover, but the rest of the Torah is all about the Exodus story. It's all about coming out of Egypt because of the land being redeemed, God taking a people for himself, a covenant people, and the journey into the place of rest, which is the land. And we went over, I think last time, so much how the biblical authors were so intentional in the way that they told stories and they loved to... thread the stories together so that when you read a certain phrase or a certain theme, you're like, oh wait, that happened over here too. And we saw that in the opening chapters of Genesis with the creation story and Noah's Ark, we have the same phrases and the links and the threads through the Exodus story. We have the Israelites, after all of these plagues happened, they come out of Egypt and they're in the wilderness, this void, chaotic place of finding their way through. And this happens on dark going in today. And they come to the waters. And then it says that God's breath, his spirit went over the waters, the Red Sea, and the waters split. And it says that dry land appeared. It's the Genesis 1 creation overlay. And the ultimate goal of the creation narrative ends, culminates with God dwelling with mankind in on the day of rest, this resting place. And he talks about later in scripture, the land that he gives his people is described as the place where his rest is encountered, entering my rest in reference to the temple. And so you have all of these amazing things that connect the Passover to other sections of the story. And so when we come together and we celebrate Passover, something that I think we take for granted is just how old this tradition is. This is, give or take, this is like a 3,500-year-old meal that has been kept every single year. And, of course, we have transitions, evolutions, you know, things change a little bit. But the core of it is the same. It is a meal that revolves around telling a story, telling an origin story about the people of God. And I heard someone in a story make the assertion the other day that this is the oldest meal living ancient meal that is still practiced today. Now, I don't know how, I'll be honest, I don't know how accurate that is because we have Hinduism and they might have some meals. I don't know, but still, that's an impressive thing to say. What we practiced last night when we broke the bread and drank the cups of wine and dipped into the bitter herbs is not something that's just like we just do. It is something that has been done generation after generation after generation. And the reason why it's done that way, why is it done every, what is the purpose of the Passover? What does God say? What's the focus? So we had all the kids out last night, right? And I know your children as well. Last night was not a quiet Passover, was it? No. And sometimes as adults, we're like, stop it. This is a solemn moment. This is a weighty, stop it. We're going to eat and do all the stuff. Stop it. And kids are screaming and playing with frogs. We got the little toy frogs, right? They bounce and they flip and they go in the cups of wine. It was great. I like to think that's how God intended it. Sometimes we like to take the holy things of God and we like to overlay them with our set-apartness and what we think the holy things of God should look like. And, well, we forget about the commandments where God says, listen, this meal is going to orbit around your kids because you're going to tell the meal. You're going to tell this story. The thing that the meal orbits around, you're going to tell it to your kids every year. You're going to ingrain this into them so that they know this pattern, this story about what it looks like when people are suffering in oppression and and God's salvation makes itself known. Your children will know that this is the God that unleashes wrath on the unjust and brings forth justice and redeems people to himself. This is what you will teach your children comes by the blood of the Lamb. And so that's just so significant. So I hope I hammered that in because we're going to talk about that today. And we're going to start out today, we're going to read a little bit in Matthew, but we're going to start out in Luke chapter 22. And we're going to follow a similar workflow. I saw a pastor walk through this messianic work. back in like 2013. This was a message by Pastor Tim Mackey at the time in the way that we are gonna present the Passover Seder tonight in a bare bones way. But when we go into the biblical story, we see Jesus going up to the upper room or to the room and he's going to the room where they're gonna have the Seder and the Last Supper. And this is like something that culminates. And so I want to paint the picture of why the Last Supper and the crucifixion is just so imperative to hammer on. Because you guys hear me talk a lot about the gospel accounts being the film that the gospel writers direct. They're individual, unique films. They're the canvas of how these authors are painting the story of Jesus. And Matthew chapter 1 through chapter 20 says, Talk about the life and ministry of Jesus. Like these 20 chapters cover what, over three years? Actually his birth as well. Like this entirety span of all these things he did. But verses 21 through 28, seven chapters, guess what? How much time it covers? A week, a week. I wonder what Matthew's emphasis was in the entirety of his film. Mark, chapters 1 through 10, the entire ministry of Yeshua. Chapters 11 through 16, the week. Luke, chapter 18, 18 chapters, the life and ministry of Yeshua. Chapters 19 through 24, a week. John, chapters 1 through 11, the rest of John is the one week. What was the emphasis of the gospel writers? Something about his triumphant entry into to Jerusalem.

And then what's he do? Like he comes in and like, like he's the king, right? Everybody's praising him like the palm branches, which symbolize victory and conquering. Like this is the king coming in on a donkey, Hosanna, Hosanna, right? And it's all good until he walks into the temple and he starts disrupting the workflow of the religious. And he starts flipping tables over and everyone's probably like, man, look at this guy. Yeah, that's right. Right, these guys taking advantage of people. But that was the moment when he also got a bad rap among the religious in Israel. That's when the people, yeah, we got to kill this guy. This guy, no, he has to stop. He comes in exposing the corruption of what the people of God had become as far as the religious leaders in Jerusalem and in the temple. And then we're introduced to a story where he's sitting at a table and this woman comes in and what she do? She breaks the jar. of perfume, same type of perfume that was common at funerals. And who gets upset with that? Judas. Judas gets upset. Man, that's a pretty expensive thing. I could have sold it and given it to the poor. Irony, right? Irony. Because he's the guy that's going to make like all this silver, 30 seconds, somewhere around like $4,000 to $5,000 worth of reward money for turning in Yeshua, turning his back on Yeshua. It's so wasteful. And after that, Yeshua wants to have a meal. And in Luke chapter 22, verse 8, here is what it says. This is the time of Passover. It's the time of unleavened bread. Then the day of unleavened bread came when the Passover lamb had to be sacrificed. Jesus sent Peter and John saying, so we got a mission, right? Yeshua's gonna, Yeshua's gonna, he's gonna go in and he has a mission for him. He says, go and make preparations for us to eat the Passover. Well, where do you want us to prepare it? They're clueless. They don't know what's going to happen next. Where do you want us to prepare it? He said, listen, he said to them. Listen to me. Everybody lean in. Listen. When you've entered the city, a man carrying a jug of water will meet you. Follow him into the house he enters. Tell the owner of the house. The teacher asks you, Where is the guest room where I can eat the Passover with my disciples? Then he will show you a large furnished room upstairs. Already furnished, ready to go. Make the preparations there. So they went in and they found it just as he had told them and they prepared the Passover. Here's a commentary I heard recently. I had never noticed anything about that chapter that seems strange. Someone compared it to like a spy novel, like something out of Mission Impossible. He's like, listen, guys, you're going to go in this city and you're going to see a man with water. Don't ask any questions. Just follow him. And he's going to enter in a house. Don't say a thing. Just follow him. The guy of the house. Hey, man, the master. It's code word. I mean, it's just I don't know. I thought it was neat. It's kind of cool. Does the same thing with his donkey. Like the cult go in and the master needs the cult. Like it's just neat. I don't know. Yeshua always has everything prepared ahead of time. Even when we have no idea what we're doing and all we're called to do is follow instructions. Just follow the directions. Be the spot. Follow the directions, even if you're not fully understanding it. And this is a culminating moment because they're setting this Passover meal, this Passover event, and there's only hours left in Yeshua's life. This isn't something that's like we have days or weeks to prepare. He only has a few hours left to do this. And you notice throughout the gospel accounts, Yeshua does not spend a lot of time talking about why he's going to die. You ever notice that? He's going around, he's portraying the fulfillment of all of the prophecies in Isaiah about new creation coming and the end of the exile and all these things. But he never really talks about why he's going to die. And here, with only a few hours left, he gathers his closest followers and he sits down. And he does not give them a theological lecture about his death, the meaning behind his death. He does not give this just expounding like, okay, guys, here is what atonement theory is about to take place and I need you to follow along. No, instead of having a lecture, he has a meal. And it is through this meal that he is going to explain to his disciples the meaning behind his death. This is why he has to die in just a few hours. So guys, today I'm going to go ahead and give you a heads up. We are going to have kind of like a play last supper. It's going to be bare bones. I'm going to ask for two volunteers. Do we have two volunteers? Who can do it? Yes. Zach is definitely. Not right now. Who else? We need a second volunteer. It's going to be Jacob. He had you first. Okay. When it's time, I need you guys to come up because we're going to have y'all missing out. We're going to eat the hot stuff. But before we do that, we're going to talk about the Lord's Supper, the Last Supper, if you will, as it's come to be called. Also called what? The Last Supper, also called Communion, also called the Eucharist, which is a biblical term. When Yeshua thanked the bread, right, thanked God for the bread, gave thanksgiving, that word is Eucharisto. Eucharisto. It's where the Orthodox tradition gets the term Eucharist from. It's kind of neat, a little Bible nerd thing when the trivia matches. So when we think about the Last Supper, when I tell you the image, in our culture, what images do we think of? We think a lot of artwork, right? We reflect on older artwork, the Renaissance. And so I wanted to walk through some of the really neat portrayals. I love art. You guys know that. I portray a lot of art. I posted a link about some art earlier this week. People didn't like it, but Jimmy cracked corn. So we are going to talk about some of this art. And this is a piece of artwork by Tenebre's Last Supper. And look at that. So this is portraying Jesus and his disciples at a table. And there's a lot of commotion coming on. But look at the top. The angels are attending and watching, and heaven is breaking forth behind him. It's just so much going on. I love the intensity of this scene here. And I think we have, what do we have next? Which one is next? I love this one. This is great. Jacopo Bassano. So look, Jesus is standing behind there, and he's behind the young disciple in front of him, but look at his feet. So he's behind him, but his feet are before him. It's just kind of a neat detail there. And then I believe that's Judas down on the bottom right. And then you have like the dog under the table, right? And we're all like, oh, it's a dog, right? I don't know, maybe it represents loyalty. It's just kind of neat, right? Everyone's gathering around. Do we have another one? I think this is the one I really like, this one by Peter Paul Rubens. The thing I like about this one, I think that's actually Judas right here looking at the camera or looking at you, breaking the little fourth wall or whatnot. So you have Yeshua and he's holding the bread and the wine. And I love how like chill Judas looks. Like look at his legs. Like guys, when you want to chill out and relax or when you want to be like seem astute and study and think, ponder, put your legs over like that. Not like this, but knee to knee, right? Like this. And look at him pondering, and he looks over at you as if to think, am I going to betray the master? Would you betray the master? Would you take this deal that he has? He's pondering. I love that. And then I found, I think, an anonymous piece of artwork. I've really loved it. It was beautiful. I don't know who. And you have this one, right? Who wrote that? Was that Leonardo da Vinci? And so... So many cool things about this. Books have been written about this. Fictional films, fictional books, kind of neat, whatever. And so, yeah. And so we're going to take all these images that we've just saw of them sitting in nice chairs and tables. And we're just going to like put a pin in them, just put them in a box and take that box out. throw it out in the ocean for a minute, and we're going to kind of reimagine what it historically would have looked like. And historically, there would have been a table that would have been low to the ground. It would have probably been three sides or maybe a circle. And the disciples, it would have been on par with the tables you would see in the environment of a Roman symposium, a feast, a formal feast. And they would have been reclining on the ground. And So yeah, so let's go ahead and start, and we're going to walk through this kind of Seder, and I hope it's fun. And we're just going to kind of walk through this, overlaying the Last Supper. So I need my two volunteers to come up. We are going to encroach on the worship team. If they're not mad, I'll move it back, I promise. And so what we're going to do is my vision was to have us all like laying down and all kinds of stuff, but we can try. So I, of course, am going to be right here. And I got my notes here, my iPad, there we go. And you guys can go ahead and sit right here. Can you kind of scooch around? And that's good. And we are going to open up to, let's see here, Matthew chapter 26. in a bit. And when we start the Passover, it starts off a feast known as what? Unleavened bread. We don't have any bread. We remove all of the leavening, the leavened bread from our homes. We get all the leavening out. Isn't that fun? Isn't that fun? So you get all the leavening out of your house and then like like in a couple days you try to make some really good unleavened brownies so you open up the oven right you open up the oven and you're like just all the bread burnt bread crumbs in the bottom i messed it up i think my my awesome aunt just tosses her toaster oven out every year just because it's too hard to clean just throw it away what's it cost 30 40 bucks or whatever just throw it away um And it's always kind of a fun thing to have the kids go through the house. We cheated. We had someone in and just clean out our house who knew about getting all the stuff out and vacuumed it all up and it was worth it. And so, yeah. And I'm going to try to sum bare bones down this Seder to what we know or believe the Seder at least would have included in the first century. And it would have included anywhere between three to four cups of wine. that represent different things, the I wills that God says in Egypt. We do four cups nowadays, but it's debatable in the first century whether it was three or four, but they definitely did that. And it stands for, of course, you know, the I will bring you out from under the oppression of the Egyptians is one cup. And then the other phrase found in the Exodus, I will deliver you from slavery to them. The third cup we celebrate today, I will redeem you with an outstretched arm and mighty acts of judgment. And then, of course, traditionally, we drink a fourth cup of wine.

And if you can still talk, you will say, I will take you to be my people. Of course, cups of wine were likely, or depending on your tradition, anyway. Yeah. We're also going to go over a couple of other aspects like dipping the carpus and the cups of wine. And so, yeah, you guys ready to jump in? Fantastic. All right. So the first thing we're going to come to is we're going to each take a piece of parsley or you can use lettuce and greens. And we're going to take this. And you guys trust me. Okay, it's going to be great. Okay. And we're going to dip the parsley in the water. And we're going to dip it like so. And you can dribble. It's OK. And we're going to go ahead and eat the parsley. And go ahead. And how is that? Does it taste salty? It's very salty because it's salt water. Some people like it. Some people don't. And this is a very old tradition. And there's many explanations for what this tradition represents. It's called the dipping of the carpus or carpus. And some people say it's because it's salty. It reminds us of the tears of slavery in Egypt. The oldest tradition that I could find says that it represents the betrayal of Joseph, the betrayal of Joseph, and the blood of the animal that was spilt on his coat. The blood of the animal. Well, yeah, you ever like tasted blood? No, I'm saying like some pagan vampire stuff. I'm talking about like, you know, guys, you cut your finger open, right? Or if you ever bit your lip, what's it taste like? It kind of tastes kind of salty and like that. Like iron. Like iron, yeah. And so you have the story of Joseph. You guys know the story of Joseph. Jacob has how many sons? Twelve sons. And one of them is a little punk, isn't he? He... I mean, it's Joseph, right? You know, he's in his dreams, he's showing them off. He's like, I'm going to rule over you and you and you and you, and even a sun and a moon. He is not favored among his brothers, but his dad loves him. So his dad makes him like this awesome coat of many colors, technicolor, all that. So his brothers are really ticked and they're like, you know what? Let's just kill him. Like, let's kill him. Anyone ever wanted to like kill your sibling? No. No. Right? Like, I'm just ready to just, kids, teenagers. Okay. Liars. So his brothers were like, they were like, let's kill him. And they thought that that would be too cruel. So a less cruel thing would be what? Sell him into lifelong slavery because that would be better. And so they sell him into slavery, but then they have a dilemma. What are we going to tell dad? And so they took his coat, and what did they do? They slit the throat of a little lamb or goat, a little goat, and they dip the coat in the blood, right? Just as we just dipped the greenery in the parsley. Now, why is that so significant? Well, it's so significant because the blood of that goat went on the coat that went to Jacob that made Jacob believe his son was dead, so he didn't search for him. And Joseph went to Egypt... And if that never took place, if Joseph was never sold into slavery and no one ever looked for him, Joseph would have never interpreted the dreams about the famine. And he never would have been put up to save up all of the grain to save everybody. And his family would have never went to Egypt and received the grain to live through the famine. And this is how God provides salvation for his people. And if that never happened, Israel never would have multiplied in the land of Goshen, the land of Israel. And God's mighty acts of outstretched arm, I'm sure would have taken place, but not with Israel's story. All because this incident involving Joseph, his brothers, this coat and the goat, the blood. And so that's the oldest tradition for the greenery. Now, from what I know you guys are excited about, we're going to go ahead and have the first cup of wine. And we're going to say a blessing over the wine, and you guys get to say it with me. But don't worry, we won't say it in Hebrew. Just need you guys in English. And so how much wine do you think you can handle? Just a little bit? You have a 2l, right? This is grape juice. We're not playing with that. Yeah. Do that. And here we go. Just a little bit. Okay. And I know some of you guys were taking the whole glass last night. And so we begin the first cup of wine. The blessing... And we'll just do that. So I'll do a blessing in Hebrew, and I think we have it up there. So we'll do, And then everybody said, Good job. And I love it because I took someone pointing this out. So in Christian tradition, when we bless them, like when we say a prayer over the food, what do we say? Like, what are we blessing? Like, bless the food. God bless this food, right? And in Jewish tradition, it's always like the food's already blessed because it came forth from the earth that God has already blessed. It's a blessing, so we thank God. And that's why Jewish blessings always start out with, blessed are you, O Lord, our God, King of the universe. And so if you want to join me in Matthew chapter 26, we are going to start with Let's see here. At the Lord's Last Supper in verse 26. Sorry, verse 19 is where we're going to start. And this is after the disciples go to the certain man and prepares the Passover. So verse 19. So the disciples did as Jesus directed them and prepared the Passover. Now, a couple things there. A, here's how we know all of those fantastically beautiful symbolic paintings are just not historically accurate. Because what's the first thing he does when he gets to the table? He reclines over, reclines, lays down at the table. He lays down, he reclies the table. And again, this is typical in Roman formal feasts, the Roman symposium, Roman culture. I know we have a tradition of saying, oh, we lean to the left because of freedom and we're at ease. And that was a later day. It had to do with culture. But regardless, it's still pretty cool. And it has to do with intimate table fellowship. So I was talking to Pete earlier, and Mark, when Yeshua reclines, and Pete's the one who pointed this out, I'd never seen it, says that he reclined with the sinners and the prostitutes and tax collectors. Intimate table fellowship, which is just cool. And what does Yeshua say? He points out that one of you is going to betray me tonight. Which one's it going to be? Is it up? Is it up? Is it up? And the irony here is they're all going to run away. Like, they're all going to run away. Like, it's up. The one who dips in the bowl that we all dipped in. Like, it's so, and of course, you know, oh, that's Judas, but they all, Peter, I mean, they all turned their backs on them. The shepherd was struck and they scattered. And Right? And so I just love the irony. Everyone's like, is it me? Is it me? Yeah. Yeah, it sure is. And so he goes on here. Thank you. I don't know why that setting is up. So another part of the Seder that we have is, again, orbits the children. And how many questions did we read last night? four questions. And so this seems to be a very ancient tradition because we ask the children. And traditionally, it's the youngest child at the table that can read. And again, I want to do something that's kind of fun. We could just have like the younger of you two read in front of everyone. But I've also seen it done when it's this environment. Everybody reads. And I thought this would be fun. Do we have the four questions up on... Do I have a slide? Do I? I do. So I want you guys... Parents. Who's a parent in here? Parents. It's time. So I want you guys to read these questions, all four of them. And I don't want you to do it as a 20, 30, 40-year-old, 56-year-old, whatever-year-old parent. I want you to embody everything your 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8-year-old is. I want you to let loose. Be the children... Yes, so I want you to read these questions as this your kids were reading them right now. Can we do that? Can we try be a little rambunctious? Okay, let's go first question Why do we eat only matzo tonight? Why do we eat bitter herbs tonight? Why do we dip our food twice tonight? Why do we recline tonight? Here we go. That was fun. You guys did a good job some better than others by the way And I'm glad you asked Because during the Seder, this point, you would say, I'm going to tell you, and you would read the story of the Passover Exodus. And so we're not going to read the story of the Passover Exodus today, because, well, just like the children, you would get restless too. But we are going to kind of summarize it, reading from Deuteronomy 26, specifically verses 5 through 10 with a little bit of ad-lib. And I tried to read the message translation, which is a beautiful translation, or not translation, it's a which I'm going to call it. Paraphrase. So it says, We cried out to God, the God of our forefathers, and he listened to our voice. He looked and he saw our destitution. He saw how cruel and how oppressed we were. So God called us out, but Egypt would not let us go. Pharaoh would not let us go, so he sent plagues, 10 plagues. And finally, after the 10th plague, he took us out of Egypt with his strong arm, through terrible and great signs and miracles. And he brought us to this place, through the desert, through the wilderness, to Mount Sinai, and gave us the Torah, and he gave us the land of milk and honey. So here I am. I've brought the firstfruits of what I've grown on this ground to give to you, O God. So this is a section of what you say when you offer the firstfruits of God. This entire meal orbits the very last plague, the plague of the death of the firstborn. And And we're familiar with it. There's going to be one final plague, and it's going to almost mimic the injustice of Pharaoh in Egypt, because Pharaoh in Egypt killed all of the male children in Egypt. And here, in likened fashion, we have the turning in of itself. This plague is going to kill all of the firstborns in Egypt. And we're familiar with it. Unless of what? Unless a lamb dies, the blood is painted on the door, the lamb is eaten. And when the destroyer comes, it says that God will pass over the houses or pass over the doorways, if you will. And some say that means like pass over, the destroyer is gonna pass over the house. And some people say that means that God's going to pass through the doorway into the home. and be with his families and keep the destroyer out. There's two ways you could teach that. I think one is a bit more poetic than the other, but it didn't really matter. And we know the destroyer came in and it wasn't just the Israelites, it was whoever had the blood in the doorpost were saved from the destroyer. And that's what this meal orbits. And so, yeah, we go from there. There is then a reading after you tell the story. Everybody good? We're good? I fall asleep? Good. There's then a reading of several Psalms. I think it's Psalms 113 through 118 and then also Psalm 136 is traditional. But we're going to read a couple of Psalms that ancient Israel would have read with their children after enduring this meal that is all about this famine. So join me as we read it together. Everybody good? So we're going to read bits and pieces starting in Psalm 114.1 and see if you can pick up on any familiar elements of this. Ready? The Jordan turned back. The cores of death entangled me. The anguish of the grave came over me. I was overcome by distress and sorrow. Then I called the name of the Lord. Lord, save me! I will lift up the cups of salvation and call on the name of the Lord. When hard-pressed, I cried to the Lord. He brought me into a spacious place. The Lord is with me. I will not be afraid. What can mere mortals do to me? Yay! And so you can kind of feel the intimacy going through this meal with your family, with the wine, with the parsley. Yeah, you see all those? Just click that. With the parsley and the symbolism. And yeah, and then we move on, and we're going to now partake of the second cup of wine. Last night, you guys didn't go this fast, did you? Nice and slow, yeah. So we're going to do a second cup of wine. Here we go. And once again, we're going to bless the wine. Blessed are you, Lord, ruler of the universe, who creates the fruit of the vine. I almost said, wow, Zach, you did quite a commitment pouring your glass that full, and then I realized. And so... This moves us on to another tradition that was really cool. So we have lots of rabbis and sages in the first century, before the first century, after the first century, that give a lot of neat commentary and perspective on the Passover. And one of those is Gamaliel, Rabbi Gamaliel. You guys heard about Gamaliel? Very famous rabbi, right? Yeah. One of his disciples, if you've never heard of this rabbi, you probably have heard of one of his most famous disciples named Saul or Paul. What? Yeah, the Paul that's in the Bible that wrote the letters, the New Testament. He was a disciple of Gamaliel. Now Gamaliel said... He says, you know, for a Passover, this is recorded in the Mishnah, he says for Passover to be legitimate, like everybody does Passover differently. You know, you go to the temple, you get your lamb, you bring it back. Everybody does something differently in their home, as they should. But he says, listen, a Passover Seder is not legitimate unless you have three items. You have to have the matzah, the unleavened bread, right? You have to have the moror, the bitter herbs, and you have to have, what else? The lamb. We got a bone of a lamb. Okay, that's what it represents in the Passover Seder. The bone represents the lamb that is no longer on the Seder plate because there's no temple. You can no longer sacrifice the Pesach, the peace offering known as the Passover offering. And you also usually have another symbol. Usually it's an egg. Usually it's another piece of food that is totally in contrast, totally separate, totally like other side of the room in contrast to the bone because it represents the Hagigal, the festival offerings, okay? that were also boiled and eaten at the Passover later in Israelite tradition in the Bible. And so you typically have an egg or some other piece of food that contrasts with the bone, if you're curious. And so these are the three items that would have to be on the Seder plate. Everything else, Go for it, whatever you want. And so we are going to get to those in a minute, but we're going to continue reading through Matthew chapter 26 and see what else happens when Yeshua has this Passover meal, according to Matthew, Mark, and Luke. John portrays the meal taking place like the day before Passover to kind of line Yeshua up with dying with the lambs on the same day of the lambs. And that's a deeper discussion, a lot of different theories about that, but that's fine. So we're gonna go to chapter 26 of Matthew, continue in verse 26. As they were eating, Jesus took bread and he blessed it, right? And he broke it and he gave it to his disciples. And so his disciples take this bread and they're eating it and he says, what's he say? He kind of drops the showstopper, right? He says, guess what? This is my body. This is my body. And it's like, okay, what does that mean, this is my body? He says, this is my body, the bread that you're partaking of. Sorry, could you say that again? I cannot say that again. The devil can't have it. That's what the disciples said. Yes, exactly what the disciples said. Can you say that again, sir? Watch went off, sorry. She had a problem with that. And so he held up the bread and he gave it to each of his disciples and he broke it. I guess I'll be Yeshua. He broke that and he broke that. And as they were eating it, he says, this is my body. This is my body. Again, what's the meaning of this meal? This is going to be something to do with the meaning of my death. Now, this is radical because throughout your life and throughout your life, ever since you were a little baby, every single year when you did the Passover and your father broke the bread and passed it around the table, Not once did your dad or granddad or great granddad or rabbi say, this is my body. This is radical. This is like, what? This is new. This is my body. This is what is going to happen to me in just a few hours. How this bread is made is the harvest takes place. The sheaf slides through the wheat or the barley, slicing it up. It's then taken and refined into dough and crushed and beaten and kneaded together. Anyone ever kneaded dough? It's really easy to do, right? Very little effort. Anyone else punch the dough when they're kneading it? You're kneading the dough. You roll it. You knead it. Put it in the oven. It goes into a furnace. And there's something about Yeshua when he's speaking about this bread that says, just like bread gives you life, it is sustenance. Just as bread gives you life, so my body. Something about my body being beaten and sliced and thrown in its own version of a furnace of flames, something about that is also going to give you life. So unintuitive. Who is this guy to take the symbols of Passover and reframe them in such a dramatic way, evolving them into a whole new way, into a whole new story, right? And so we have the leavened. And we have the lamb, kind of, kind of. You guys realize that none of the gospel accounts record a lamb being present at this Passover meal? A lot of theories about it. I like to think if this is a Steven Spielberg type, Matthew, Mark, Luke, and he's directing the film, okay? The film is meant to portray what they want you to know about this Yeshua. The lamb was at the table. The lamb was at the table and it was Yeshua. And so what's the next thing, the next element? We have the lamb, we did the unleavened bread. What's the next element according to Gamaliel? What do we got? The bitter herbs, that's great. We are ready. So we're going to partake of the bitter herbs and go ahead and dip. So this is very mild. Very much. So just get a little bit. It's fine. And so the honorable thing to do at Passover is the idea of the bitter herbs. It represents what? The bitterness of slavery and oppression that we have in, oh my gosh. Wisdom. And so it's recorded that it's honorable or the pursuit of eating the bitter herbs and feeling all those needles up in your nose is to produce a tear. to represent the tears that were shed because of the life of slavery and oppression and cruelty and the life of an environment that's constantly pushing in on you and controlling what you do and having this impression in your heart and on your life that is leading you to death. And not just any death, but a downward spiral into Egypt, into the ground. And so, yeah, Let's produce that tear. Zach, you want to put some back? I don't want to. Last night I didn't get any tears. I'm going to turn off my mic because one year I ate it and it hit a gag. Anyway, I'm just going to just in case. So let's partake of the bitter herbs. More wine. More wine. Yeah. There it is. You okay? Yeah. Good. Okay. Not too many sound effects. That's always good when you don't have too many sound effects. You need some more? We need juice? We're good? You produced a tear? Yeah. Yeah, did you? I didn't see a tear. Do you need to? It was on the side. That's good. And so we have this bitterness of slavery. And one of the most reflective things about the Passover that's been carried on for an ancient time is even though, like in the first century, like if you were the disciples, you guys never experienced a life in Egypt. Like you were not there for that event. But when we partake of these elements, we're supposed to partake of them as if we were the generation that saw the mighty acts of God and brought us out of Egypt. And it's so interesting because like... We still experience at times, or at least the idea is that we still have oppression and slavery in our lives. And sometimes it's not from a physical Pharaoh that's over the country and has us in chains and whipping us and so on and so forth. Many times it's a Pharaoh within us. It's ourselves that do the things and partake of the things and pursue the things of building up our own kingdoms in our lives at our own expense and at the expense of others. And It's the own Pharaoh that we find in our own hearts. And that's something that Yeshua addresses here, and we're going to get to that. And so, yeah, when we partake of the bitterness of slavery, we remember the things that we struggle with even in our own hearts and that we feel like we're slaves to at times. And sometimes we enjoy it because of the watermelons that are in Egypt and the fruits, right? And so, yeah, this is the bitter herbs. Now we're going to move on to Matthew chapter 26. And again, we have the lamb. And the lamb, I believe, was at the table. And again, Yeshua is sitting here and he's transforming every single element that you grew up with and you grew up with every single year. And every element he picks up, he's reframing to talk about himself. And it's something about this bread being broken. It's something about this wine, this blood being spilled for a covenant, because that's what happened in Egypt. The blood of the lamb was spilled out So that a covenant people can be birthed. God can take them as his own. The bitter herbs are gonna be about the bitterness of the constraints of our heart and just a sin that God frees us from and Yeshua frees us from. Something about the blood of the lamb being spread over is what saved the people during this event. And so we go to the third cup and we go to Matthew chapter 26. And let's go ahead and do the third cup. Give me a little bit less of that time. I'm sorry for the last time. I'm a fool. All right, here we go. Third cup. That's good. You good? You doing good? We've got food. We're good. Okay. All right. Starting in verse 27 of Matthew 26. So he gives you the bread, and you're eating it, and it's all good. He says, this is my body. And then he does something radical. It says here that then he took a cup, and after giving thanks for it, he gave it to them. So he's giving you this cup, this third cup, if you will, that we just drank. And you start to sip it. Like, yeah, it's time to. He gave thanks for it. He did the blessing. Let's drink it. And you can almost imagine, and I'm adding to the story, halfway through the cup, like Zach just going for it. Drink from it. All of it. All of you drink it up. For this is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins. This is bizarre. It's bizarre because the wine has never been associated with But what this is, it's celebration and it's the redemptive power of God. Like it's the, I will take you. I will, you will see my judgment through mighty acts. Like I will bring you out of slavery. I will make you my own people. What's that have to do with blood? Like what is about, why would Yeshua associate this with the spilling of his blood? What are those four things have anything to do with Yeshua? Yeah. Joy of salvation. Joy of salvation. I mean, taking you out, marvelous works, freeing you from slavery, taking you as his own. And that's how the imagery is still the same imagery, but it's being blended together in a new, new way. And that's incredible to him. And he continues. He says here in verse 29, "But I tell you, I will not drink from this fruit of the vine from now on until the day when I drink it anew with you in the Father's kingdom." And after singing a hymn, right, like Psalms, they went out to the Mount of Olives. Now, what's interesting is when we miss it here in verse 29, this is an event that is based around, this meal is based around an event that took place when? In the past.

And here Yeshua makes a new claim. He says, this event is not only an event that commemorates the past, it's now going to be an event with this new symbolism that is going to be in the present and the future. It doesn't just represent an event that took place a long, long time ago. It now takes place and represents an event that is in the present and in the future. And in that future, I will drink of this cup with you. Can you imagine? Egypt, Egypt, Egypt, lamb in Egypt. And here, here the master is redefining the bread, redefining the wine, redefining everything. And he's saying, and guess what? When you revisit this from now on and remember me, it's no longer going to point back to Egypt in the past. It's going to point from a freedom of oppression and power and slavery in the present and the future. And it's going to point back to me. So radical. Who does he think he is? Seriously, bizarre. The magnitude of the reframing of this meal. And this is what we celebrate. And we don't just celebrate it once a year, if you will. I mean, we do in our tradition, but in Christian tradition, it has come to be celebrated around the two elements that he gave the most meaning to.

which is the bread and the cup, the wine. And so that is where we get the tradition of communion or the Eucharist or the Last Supper moving forward. And many churches do it every single week. Some churches do it every single day. Some churches do it once a year. But all the same, when we come together and we partake of the bread and the cup, it is this reframed Passover. And it's not just a meal, right? that makes us think about the symbolism and the event, it's also an invitation to participate in it. And that's what makes it so impactful for us today when we partake of the bread and the cup is because it's not just knowing what it means and knowing what it symbolizes, it's participating in this Passover event that is in the present and in the coming future through Yeshua. So is that good? Yeah. Kind of the bare bones? Okay, let's give it up for Zach and Jacob here. Thank you. So that's the end of the Seder. And we're going to have a little transition here from doing a couple things. Let me get back in my zone here. Here we go. Again, for review, instead of Yeshua bringing together his disciples and giving a logical, well-thought-out bullet point with the PowerPoint articulation of the meaning of a death, he gives us a meal explaining the the meaning behind his death. He takes this event that has already been woven in the life of his people, so familiar to all of them, and he takes the Passover and he re-images the entire thing. He takes the ancient story and the meal and reframes it along with all of the characters to focus on himself and his death and his resurrection. As I said, Jesus, Yeshua, does not want us to just remember. He wants us to participate in it. He wants us to participate in his death, burial, and resurrection. Every generation sees itself coming out of Egypt, but for his followers, every generation sees itself as the generation that sits with him in his final meal. That's the impact of the bread and the cup. In this moment, you are participating in the same last supper as his disciples. This is my body, and we partake and we consume. This is my blood, and we partake and we consume. This is the blood of the new covenant. This is the blood that forgives sins. This is the body that is broken to give life and its participation. This is where, again, we get the concept of communion. And every year, Passover comes for the Jewish people and always has been. And it's a time of a reset in the Jewish calendar, the religious calendar. Passover is like what kicks it off, right? Like Passover is the thing that God said, you know what? The first month is going to be right here. And the first feast day is going to be right here. And this is what is going to launch you forward in a rhythm of life that takes place every single year. And every single feast day is going to be about worship, but it's also going to be about remembering something to ground yourself in, something about the covenant I have with you and you as my people. And so every single year, And the Jewish history, you come together and you revisit the Passover and you revisit the elements that identifies you as the Jewish people that came out of Egypt and you ground yourself in the story. You remember, you once again root yourself down in what it means to participate in the exodus from slavery. And guys, that's what's so cool about what Yeshua does here because it hasn't changed for those followers of Yeshua. When we go through life, sometimes we get distracted. Sometimes we stray. Sometimes we go back for the watermelons in Egypt, right? And whenever we come to the bread and the cup once again, to the last supper once again, to this re-imaged Passover once again, it's a time where we get the opportunity to ground ourselves, to root ourselves, to come back to this moment sitting at this table. You know, it's incredible because when we think about our Egypt, guys, where were you before Yeshua if you're a believer today? Where were you? What was your pursuit in life? What were you a slave to? This is how we participate in acknowledging where we've come from, but also where we might still be stuck in. Somehow through Yeshua taking in all of this death and sin and consequences of our evil hearts, somehow through that, he makes this claim that we are being rescued. This is what he's portraying when he offers the bread and the cup. Jesus very much so believes in his story that our sin and selfishness and bitterness are the things that are truly killing us, killing all of mankind. And if you notice, when Yeshua talks in his ministry, he doesn't see the world in terms of us versus them. Now, I know that none of us here have ever encountered a scenario or environment where we instantly tribalize our own identity and put ourselves in a box, and we put other people in another tribe and another identity, and we put them in a box, and And that box will never touch this box because this box is better or right or more special or more holy or whatever than that box over there. No one has ever had an us versus them mentality, right? Right? That is literally the ethic of this country we live in, by the way. Literally. Yeshua didn't see the world in those types of terms. Read through the gospel accounts. He is always going to the boxes over there, the outskirts of society, to the marginalized, to the outcasts. The people that others put in a class, put a label on and classify as them instead of us. Now, Yeshua sees the world in terms of humans that are trapped and oppressed by sin. He sees humanity who is enslaved in dark things inside of us. John speaks of Yeshua knowing what is within you without you even saying it. Mark, the same thing. Mark records Yeshua as saying an inescapable accusation that evil originates from inside your heart So it's easy to blame the devil for everything, right? No, it's something that you're enslaved to. Evil thoughts, lust, pride, gossip, deception, envy, murder. These are the vomit of our hearts. But Yeshua also saw something else. This mysterious paradox of the human heart. He also saw goodness and beauty found in the hearts of humans. The back and forth of and this fighting, this war that goes on within you. But slowly, we are ground down. Slowly, we're dying from its effects of this darkness, this evil within our own hearts, this pursuit of self-preservation at the expense of others, jealousy, unforgiveness, hatred, and evil, injustice, guised as righteousness, something that we've never done. And the result is a world that looks like ours. And the mission of Yeshua was to address that, slavery to that. Yeshua was so focused on remedy to that slavery through his life, death, and resurrection. His life was offered to give us a glimpse of heaven, and his death was in place of you as taking on the biggest weapon that the slave master had. And his resurrection is also offered to us as we die to Egypt and are raised to life entering into this eternal kingdom. The story of Passover, guys, is a battle of lamb. And through that lamb, Yahweh rescues the Israelites from slavery to Pharaoh. And here, the story is through Yeshua, though. And Yahweh rescues the world from slavery to sin and death. So guys, I don't know where you're at today, but please stand. There is a selfish desire when we come into this world. And we see it in our children the most, right? No one teaches their three-year-old to be completely selfish. Oh my gosh, we're envious. So last night, my kids hunted for the Alfie Komen, and I had a ring pop, and the smallest of them found it. And guess what happened to the other two? Envy, jealousy, bitterness. Oh, there was unforgiveness. There was murder in the heart. There was selfishness. How many of you are slaves to that today, about making yourself feel better at the expense of others? Oh, man, I don't do that. I mean, okay. Gossip, that's not, no, that's at the expense of someone else. Theft, it's at the expense of someone else. Lust, adultery, yeah, breaks apart marriages. Yeah, but what about if I'm not actually physically lust? No, you're objectifying an image of God. You're taking something away from them. Theft, bitterness in your heart, murder. These are the things that we as humans struggle with. And what Jesus says through this demonstration is that I have come to free you from that somehow through my death, burial, and resurrection. And these are the symbols that I want you to take to participate in this message and in this meal that represents that. Because those things do not belong in the kingdom of this king. There is a lamb whose blood can free you from that. And so when Yeshua comes to the table and he offers us the bread and the cup, he confronts all of us with the choice of He confronts us with the choice of do you want to remain in Egypt or do you want to remain in chaos or do you want to remain in chains or do you want to be laboring to uplift the kingdom of another that is filled with self-righteousness, self-exaltation, selfishness and murder, the kingdom of darkness that is ruled by the principalities or do you want freedom through the Lamb? Do you want peace, shalom? Do you want to attach yourselves to another kingdom, not of this world, living out the embodiment of God's grace and love? The choice that Yeshua confronts us with here in the gospel accounts, will you participate in taking the bread and the cup that he offers? And so guys, we know there's four cups of wine for Passover, and we didn't address the fourth one. And I thought it was only appropriate that we would offer the bread and the cup here today. So we have unleavened bread that is also gluten-free and we have grape juice, wine in a cup. And these are symbols, these are symbols, but they're symbols of something magnificent and something that we are called to participate in. And so the worship team's going to come up and I'm not going to distribute these among you. I'm going to give you the opportunity during this time of self-reflection to come up and take a cup and take a piece of the broken bread and go back to your seat and have that moment of participating in this last supper with Yeshua, just like his disciples did. And the reason why I'm not just gonna pass it out to you guys is because I don't want it to be casual. And some of you may not be ready to partake in this symbol. Some of you may not be in a place in your heart where you feel like you can because you want the things of Egypt. You have the things of Egypt. You're still shackled inside. You might like it. And during this time of reflection, I want you to have this time to meditate on those things. Is there something in your heart that you need to acknowledge today that you need to say that is Egypt, that you need to say, I do want to be freed from this, that you need to say, you know what? This is not something that belongs in his kingdom. And yes, I want the bread that represents his body. And I want the cup that represents his blood and calling forth a new covenant, a new relationship with God, the forgiveness of sins, the forgiveness of the things that I've done and the bitterness in my own heart. And so maybe you're not prepared. You don't think you're worthy to take the bread and the cup. That's not what I'm saying. I don't think any of us are worthy, but I do think that now is the time to have a moment of meditation of where your heart is at. And are you willing to sit at the table with Yeshua? And if you need prayer during this time, guys, we have a prayer team offstage over here. This can be something that you want to acknowledge in your life or it can be prayer for a situation that you're going through in your life. Guys, we've got some mighty prayer warriors that would love to lift you up and stand with you. But I want to invite you in this moment to come and join Yeshua at the table of the Passover that represents the present and the future. Avinu Mokenu, our Father, our King, Father, we thank you for the blood of the Lamb, Yeshua. We thank you for the bread that is unleavened of Yeshua. We thank you for the blood that is poured out, for forgiveness of sins, for a renewed type of relationship with you. But that today that our hearts would acknowledge your forgiveness, mercy, and grace, but it would also acknowledge the things that are holding us back from you. That we would yearn more for the bread and the cup than the things of Egypt. And that at this moment in time, that would be the decision. That would be the decisive moment that we make that commitment once again to sit. We thank you, Father, in the name of Yeshua, our King, our Lamb, the Exalted One. Amen. What an honor it is that like so many others in the stories that were given in the Bible, we too are invited to recline and dine with Yeshua. And what participation means when we do that is it doesn't just simply mean, again, this re-imaged Passover around Yeshua, but it means our participation, which means that we're called to be the Passover people in the present and moving forward. And that means we're called to be the people that have the testimony of being free from slavery by the mighty outstretched arm of our God. And we're the people that had the testimony of being redeemed by this lamb. And we are the people that have the testimony of being made his. And this is no small thing. It's no small thing. And many churches throughout history do this differently, but every single one of them, including the earliest documents we have of the first disciples, understood the weight of this simple practice. And so I want to tell you today that Yeshua loves you. And Yeshua wants you to be his. And his grace and mercy is endless. And the blood has already been shed for forgiveness of sins. And so if you're here today, and maybe you're not a follower or a fully committed follower of Yeshua, I encourage you to consider it. I encourage you to enter in. And you can speak to me or one of the prayer team afterwards, if that's you today. And maybe you were held back for whatever reason and you didn't want to partake of the cup and the bread. We're going to leave it out. You are welcome to at your discretion. These are the symbols of being included at the table with Yeshua. But we have to sit at the table. We have to walk in and sit down and accept it. And so we're going to conclude services today. And again, I hope this was an impactful service for

you. We, I believe, have an oneg or a potluck set up outside. Don't know what the food quantity status is, but if you notice there's not a ton of food, guys, take a little bit and maybe it'll be multiplied in your stomach so we can share. Well, it's fellowship. I didn't mean for that to be so casual, but now we get a chance to dine with each other. And so it's a big deal. And so I'm going to turn it over to Jason to lead us out in the Shema. So please stand as we sing the Shema together and declare our one God and one King, who is Yeshua. Shema Yisrael Adonai Echad Baruch Shem Hear, O Israel, the Lord is our God, the Lord is one. Blessed is the name of his glorious kingdom for all eternity. May the Lord bless you and keep you. May the Lord make his face shine upon you and be gracious unto you. May the Lord lift up his countenance toward you and give you peace. Hallelujah. Shabbat Shalom. Shabbat Shalom. If this message impacted you or if this ministry has been a blessing to you, we invite you to take part in making sure the message of Yeshua and the truth of God's word continues to reach others. To make sure this happens, you can donate through our online giving portal at foundinatruth.com slash give or by texting any amount to 704-275-0752. Don't forget to like and subscribe for new content every single week. And we thank you for your continued support. And we look forward to seeing you next time. Shalom.
