

The automated narrative structure of the written material might seem disjointed or peculiar in some areas. Moreover, it may include linguistic inaccuracies that typically would not be permissible in formal writing. It is recommended to watch the video lectures as a supplement to this written material for a more comprehensive learning experience.

What the Torah is Not - The Torah Series

Main Verses: `` `html

- Genesis 1
- Exodus 20
- Exodus 32:4
- Leviticus 16
- Deuteronomy 5
- Deuteronomy 22:8
- Deuteronomy 33:4
- Isaiah 1
- Amos
- Psalm 15
- Micah 6:8
- Habakkuk 2:4
- Matthew 22:37-40
- Mark 12:29-31
- Luke 10:27
- Ezekiel 36:25-27
- Jeremiah 31:33
- James 1:27
- Psalm 68:5

Watch on Youtube: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Af9yxC1RNw>

Message Given: Sep 3rd, 2019

Podcast:

<https://foundedintruth.podbean.com/e/what-the-torah-is-not-the-torah-series/>

Teaching Length: 62 Minutes 27 Seconds

Email us Questions & Comments: info@foundedintruth.com

Was this teaching a blessing?

DONATE

Do you ever find yourself searching for something bigger than you? For a community to be a part of? A place founded on truth and love? A place to worship the King of Kings, the Lord of Lords, and the Son of God? Welcome to Founded in Truth, where we're more than just a fellowship. We're a family, so welcome home. All right, great. So we're continuing kind of our Torah series right now, and we're still kind of laying some groundwork for how we look at the front of the Bible, how we're supposed to... You know, has anyone ever read the Torah and been like, this is awesome, but at the same time been like, what do I do with this? Like, sometimes. And the Torah is very... It's an amazing... It's an amazing... It changed my life when I realized that the Torah was not simply a divine list of commandments that fell out of heaven, but that it actually had effort and intention in the way it was written, the patterns that it had, the narrative that was strung through it actually mattered. It changed my life completely when I realized that this thing is not just a daily checklist that we check off to somehow appease God, but that it actually has power to cultivate God's kingdom on earth. It was meant to go forth out of us, not sit inside of us. And so, what is the Torah, if you've never heard this word before? The Torah is another name, the Hebrew word for the first five books of the Bible that we have. It's also known as the Pentateuch in Greek. It comes from the two Greek words, really fancy. Two Greek words that mean the five books, Pentateuch. I get humor out of the simplicity of the Bible sometimes. So, Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy. And they contain the launching pad for the story of Israel and God's mission to dwell with man. That's what it is. And it's unfortunate that many, many Christians, many people in the world may have never really heard or understood the word Torah before. They're not really sure what that is. It's part of the Bible that typically goes ignored or it's dismissed or it's considered fully irrelevant. Which I understand. The first time I read through the Torah, I mean, you get to Leviticus, and you're like, what am I supposed to do with this? If I sin, I got to get a goat, and then I got to do, and then get killed. I never killed an animal before. I've never been hunting. Goldfish once. Oops. I mean, it was... Kill the goat and then the blood, they do what? And then they manipulate it and they put it in the horns of the altar. And what is this talking about? Like, I totally get it. I mean, we can empathize with that. Like, what is, why? Why is this here and what is it doing for me? And so it's considered irrelevant. And that's a tragedy, I feel, especially when we read the Bible to learn about God's plan and just how big a deal Yeshua is. and everything the Torah has to do with that. Torah is a significant part of the entire story of Israel, of course. And traditionally, the Torah is referred to as law, or it's referred to as the law, due to the large, dense sections of conversation where God and Moses are telling Israel the do's and don'ts on how to cultivate a way to live as a God-ordained community. In reality, the word Torah means instructions. Instructions. And some would be quick to say, well, yes, instructions are law. And I could see how you could beeline to that conclusion, but instructions are more intimate than law. It's there to teach us. It's there to instruct us. It's not simply a piece of legislation. It's not simply. It's breathing. It's alive. And although the Torah may very well have laws in it, it is far from simply a law code. Very much so. And today's message, I hope, will be edifying. We're going to be discussing what the Torah is and what the Torah is not. And when we spoke about what the Bible is not a few weeks ago, I felt that went pretty well. No big complaints. A lot of people felt like it was edifying. That's good. I wanted to kind of do the same thing for the Torah. And And we're Christians, and because of that, we love the whole of the Bible. We love the Torah. And so on one side of the believing body, you might have people who view the Torah as irrelevant, don't really know what it is, aren't familiar with it. And then on the other side, you have messianic churches or messianic fellowships that love the Torah. I mean, we love the Torah. We do. We yearn to keep the Torah in whatever scope, in whatever capacity we possibly can because we believe it brings honor to God. But sometimes, sometimes in that mindset, we end up making the Torah into something that it's not, that it's not supposed to be. Sometimes instead of viewing the Torah as a way to instruct us to show the world of God's love, we end up using it as a weapon to cut the world down and make ourselves look more righteous and more holy or better than everyone else. We make the Torah about us instead of about the mission of God. And as Yeshua followers, that's a problem when that happens. It's unfortunate when we end up using the Bible more as something that puffs us up instead of putting the spotlight back on God because it goes against the very ethic of the kingdom of God that Yeshua preached.

You know, we read about the entire ministry of Yeshua being surrounded by people who made the Torah into something that it wasn't supposed to be in order to lift themselves up above others. People who kept the Torah for their own gain and not to cultivate an attitude of God's mercy, grace, and love to others. A people who minimized the greatness of the Torah into a simple divine checklist that if they can check off enough things in a day, then it shows the world how much they love God. And I hope to show that the purpose of Torah throughout the entire Bible is was for us to embody its spirit to show the world how much God loves them.

That's my hope. And so when we look at the Bible, sometimes we look at the Bible and we make the mistake, and I might get geeky. Hopefully I can pull up out of it. So sometimes, have we ever looked at the Bible and we look at the Torah and we're like, look at all these laws. Like this is the law of God and there is a law and a circumstance for everything. There's an answer for every situation in my life in this book somewhere. Right? There's got to be a law somewhere. I've viewed the Torah like that before. Like, I'll go back and I'll be like, yeah, I got this situation here in 2019 that ancient Israel never dealt with, but I'm going to find, there's a commandment in here that deals with this situation. Maybe it's Leviticus 4, goats and stuff. Leviticus 16, putting blood all over the altar. No. Atonement. No. Where is it? And the fact of the matter is, that's just not the case. Torah says that. See, Torah 17 kind of sets itself up to help clarify what it is and what it isn't. And it says, So the Torah tells us right there that it's not a checklist for every situation in your life. It's not a black and white, like, stuff is going to happen, that you will not find a law or a statute regarding. And so are you supposed to go to the leadership of the community if there's a situation you need help with and do what they say? Anyone ever notice that before? I come from a very more conservative viewpoint. So for me, I'm like, what? So if there's something not in here, you just go to the leaders and they make the decision for you? Well, where does leadership get their answers from if not the Torah? Well, they get their answers through wisdom. Hopefully, God placed them in leadership to have. Torah sets the groundwork for you to develop divine wisdom so that you will know what to do in every situation, even if there's something in there that doesn't specifically say it. The Torah was meant to cultivate a community of God that thrives and grows together, not create a bunch of robots that do a daily checklist to appease God. Remember, Amos and Isaiah. Remember Isaiah we talked about a few weeks back? Amos and Isaiah... Israel thought that they were appeasing God by keeping Torah as a checklist. I mean, Isaiah chapter 1 is brutal. The whole monologue of Amos, just wrenching. And they're keeping this checklist, and they're doing the Sabbaths, and they're doing the feast days, and they're tick, tick, tick, tick, tick, I'm doing everything, and this is why I've satisfied God. And Isaiah 1 says it made God want to vomit. It made him want to, like, sick. Sick. Because they totally missed the spirit of what he wanted to do and what his intention of the Torah was to do in them. Many times in the Torah, when we read it, it's a problem. It's a problem sometimes, the way that we view the Torah. Many times commandments are vague. Has anyone ever read a commandment and been like, that's pretty vague? In the Torah, how do you handle those? What do we do with these? How are some of the ways that we have looked at the Torah or the things of the Old Testament and tried to justify how the absence of details are? The Sabbath is a great one. Keep the Sabbath. So in Exodus, it says remember the Sabbath in Exodus 20 and the Ten Commandments. And then over in Deuteronomy when the Ten Commandments are given, it's actually different. It says to keep it. So you have remember over here in this book and then keep over here in this book. There's a little bit of a difference. But all the same, how do we do that? Don't work on the Sabbath. Well, yeah, okay, that's pretty clear-cut. Don't kindle a fire on the Sabbath. That's pretty clear-cut. Like, how do we do these things? These aren't necessarily black and white. Here's a great one that I love to use. It's Deuteronomy 22.8. When you build a new house, make a parapet or a wall, a safety wall around the roof so that you may not bring the guilt of bloodshed onto your house if someone falls from the roof. How many of you have ever read this verse before? How many of you went home and built a wall around your roof? How many of you felt compelled to build a wall around your roof? Nobody. Like nobody. Like we went through this verse and be like, that's probably a good idea. So if you notice that this commandment, this commandment is not concerned with OSHA safety regulations. There's no instruction here of what kind of wall to build. Like it's not like a 36 inch or is it 24 inch or five feet? Like there's none of that in there. This verse, the intention of this verse is what? Don't bring blood guilt onto your home. Don't be stupid and kill somebody because of neglect. Right? So if we look at this verse as being completely like, we can't mess with it, this is how it is, it's a checklist, we're going to check it off, then who does it extend to? Does it extend to a burglar that climbed on your house and was trying to break in and fell, hurt himself? Is that blood guilt on you? Has someone climbed up the roof to jump off to commit suicide? Is that blood guilt on you? I wouldn't think so. We can see the intention of the commandment has to do with not being negligent. The commandment makes no attempt to include specifics about the situational circumstances. That comes with wisdom. That comes with an understanding. That comes with a heart that wants to do God's will and what is this commandment saying and what is the intentionality of this commandment. Many of us, many of us, do you ever look at this commandment and think you're sinning? Like are we all in sin right now because we don't have walls on our roofs when we get home? I'm hoping to, and I'm not articulating it the way I want to. Have you ever thought that you're a sinner because you're breaking this commandment? No. No. We've never thought that. We would never think of this as like sinning if we didn't do this. Why? Well, because our roofs aren't accessible and they have a pitch that's really high, so who's going to get up there anyway? And it's not like we have kids running around our roofs. Like, that's just not, that's just not, it's not applicable to us in this regard, in such a literal regard, even though its intention is. What is the intention of this commandment? To sway blood guilt on your home. We don't have flat rooftops with people partying on. How is it that this commandment is still applicable today. That's a good way of putting it. How is it still applicable today? When we read the commandments of Torah, we need to first come to the intention of the commandment. What is the intention to help us better understand this so that we can keep it adequately with all of our heart? Well, the intention is not to be negligent. The intention is to don't be negligent and get someone killed or hurt. So when you hop in your car, when you tell everyone to put their seatbelts on, is that avoiding blood guilt? No. When you're doing work in your backyard and you've got kids and you've got a big old saw up there, unplug it because your kids are playing out there. Is that avoiding blood guilt? What if you have little kids that are crawling open in cabinets so you put the little locks in the cabinets so the kids don't get in the chemicals? Is that avoiding blood guilt? Are you keeping this commandment today in 2019? You very much so are. The intention of the Torah stays alive and transcends all generations and all cultures. Not so if we look at the Torah as a simple, if we minimize it as a simple checklist. It's interesting because the Torah has law in it, which is how it's got its little nickname. But it's fascinating because when the Torah starts off, it doesn't start off looking like any type of piece of legislation. What does it start off with? It starts at the beginning. It starts off with a story, with narrative. The entire book of Genesis is just like an action-packed, progressive story with conflict, drama, betrayal, tons of cool stuff. It is. And the reason why I impress that and why I hope... Too many times we view the Torah as simply a bunch of stuff that we don't need to do or do need to do, and we miss out on the invitation that it extends to us to become part of the story of God. And so when we read the story of Genesis, all we can see is like, all right, all this stuff happened, and dang, they messed up, and thou shalt, thou shalt not. Okay, here we go. And no, it's all relevant. It's all part of the story. You have the creation of the world, the creation of man, the serpent, mankind choosing autonomy from God. You have the great flood, Noah's Ark. You have the Tower of Babel, Nimrod, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Egypt, dreams. You have interpretation of dreams. You have promises, covenants. You have prostitutes. You have shame, fathers, brothers that go to defend their sister only to end up bringing complete and utter shame onto their family. It's intense. It's 50 chapters of like not ancient law code, but intense narrative that's riveting if you can actually sit down and like will commit yourself to saying, you know, I want to read this story and I want to be involved with this story and I want to see if I can see what the authors are telling me. Why did they write these stories this way? Why did God give us these stories this way? You enter into the Exodus, the book of Exodus, the Exodus story with Israel thriving, but then there is a Pharaoh that knew not Jacob. And he rose and he turned the Israelites from a prosperous people into what? Slaves. They cry out to God, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. God hears their cries. God commissions Moses to lead his people out of slavery. He sends all these plagues, lots of face-offs against Pharaoh and Moses. Finally, a lamb is killed. His blood provides the way out of slavery. You see the big messages that we miss when we're not paying attention to the story? Israel walks through the Red Sea. They go through the waters to a new life of inheritance and relationship with God. And then they start complaining. Nobody can relate to this part of the story, I know. But they start complaining that God's not doing enough for their life, or their life is still stressful. Or, man, we really liked them watermelons back in Egypt. It's a quote. And then there's that quail incident in chapter 16. So in Numbers, God talks about, I'm going to send you so much quail, it's going to come out your nose. So you chuckle, and that's good. If you feel it, that's meant to be kind of like, yes. And then you have Mount Sinai. They end up at a mountain, at the foot of this mountain, and in chapter 20 of Exodus, the narrative abruptly stops. Like the exciting, riveting story of action-packed drama, like it hauls to a stop, slow, very slow. But before the Ten Commandments are given, God says, you're going to be my people. Here is the law. Here is the Ten Commandments. Before that, we have 70 chapters of a story that God was hoping for us to read and be involved in that we miss. Did you ever think about it that way? I hope I'm speaking to someone because for me it was always like I didn't like the Torah at all, and then I got invited into the Torah, and the only thing I saw the Torah as was the daily checklist of commandments, so that's the only thing I paid attention to, and then I'd fight with people about how they're not doing the commandments like they should, like building a roof front. And I totally miss the story of God that is so engulfing and consuming that you're a part of. The commandments are part of that. I'm not minimizing commandments. I'm just trying to bring up the story of which is emphasized at the very beginning. 70 chapters. You have the Ten Commandments. In Hebrew, the Bible actually refers to them as the Ten what? The Ten Words. The Ten Statements, if you will. And they're called the Ten Words. And the reason why is because the very first thing, here's Exodus chapter 20, verse 1. God spoke all of these things. So he's speaking, this is the Ten Commandments. And the very first thing he says is, I am the Lord your God who brought you out of Egypt, out of the land of slavery. I'm the Lord your God who did what? Brought you out of Egypt and the land of slavery. Great. It's important. Because at another part of the story, this gets revisited in a perverted way. So the very first thing that God says is like not even a commandment. It's a statement. So hence, this is the start of the ten statements. You shall have no other gods before me. You shall not make for yourself any image in the form of anything in heaven above, the earth beneath, the waters below. You shall not bow down to them or worship them. Don't make something and worship it. God's saying, I already have an image. You shall not bow down and worship them. For I, the Lord your God, am a jealous God, punishing the children for the sins of the parents and the third and fourth generations, all who hate me, but showing love to a thousand generations of those who love me and keep my commandments. So it's fascinating because how many of you guys grew up in church, probably Protestant church, where you had your ten commandments, Protestant ten commandments, and the very first commandment was, thou shalt have no other gods before me. That's number one. So in Jewish tradition and even Catholic and like Anglican tradition, that's not so. Like their first commandment is or includes the statement in verse two. So in Judaism, the first commandment is, I am the Lord your God who brought you out of the land of Egypt and led slavery. And of course, Protestants over here were like, but that's not a commandment. And they're like, yes it is. Yeah, it is. It's a command to believe. It's a command to believe. I thought that was neat. That's neat. We'll talk about that in a minute. So the ten words are spoken, and then for like four more chapters, everyone thinks, they think the story, maybe they've never read the story, they think that after God spoke the Ten Commandments, like, God just stopped talking. No, he keeps on going for four chapters. There's another 40-something commandments that just keep rattling out. It's interesting. So God gives the commandments, but if we read it as narrative, as part of the story of God and the story that he wants us to be invited into, which it was designed and has patterns for that, what do we see? What's the big event that we see that happens next in the story? Does Israel do the commandments that they were just given? It's not a hard, no, they don't. They don't. They agree to, and then what happens, right? What happens? He says, "I am the Lord your God that brought you out of the land of Egypt. Don't worship other gods. Don't make a graven image. Don't do it." Exodus 32:4. "He took what they handed him and made it into an idol, cast in the shape of a calf, fashioning it with a tool. Then they said, 'These are your gods, Israel, who brought you up out of Egypt.'" Like, it was totally everything that he just said. "Don't do this. Don't worship other gods. I am the one who brought you out of Egypt. Don't make a graven image." Yes, sir. You're supposed to see that and be like how can they be so stupid? Like no, I mean, I'm just that's me. That's my commentary like why would they do that? How could they they just saw this and what's what's amazing? Amazing is how God responds in the story of the Torah God does what as a response he gives more what laws? All right, I guess we need something just dump some up more laws and then Israel does what they rebel again and And so God gives more laws, and they rebel again. And it's just, it's really, if you go into it, if you dare to read the Torah, it's as narrative. Not dismissing the commandments that are applicable to us today and that we do need to keep and are valuable. But reading it as the story that it's written to be, you will find, you will see stuff that's so interesting in this story. Like when Aaron's sons go into, so Aaron's sons go into the holy place and they offer the strange fire. They're trying to do, it seems they're trying to do something that only their father was positioned to do. They encroached. And so they got zapped in the story. They died. And the reason why the story gets so intense is because where did they die? In the holy place. Like, you're not supposed to have dead bodies in the middle. So what are we supposed to do with this? And you have these other laws that are coming out, and then it's like, don't you drink any liquor before you come in there and try to do the temple. I mean, just all these little things just start getting added on. Then finally, after this pattern of up and down and up and down and more laws and more rebellion and more laws and more rebellion, it's as if the tour is just too hard for us. We know that's a lie because the scripture says that. Finally, Moses has a chat with Israel in chapters 27 through 34 where he encourages Israel. They're about to go into the land. We're finally here at the end of the tour. We're about to go into the land. Moses, like the whole Deuteronomy is just like a summary of just everything that's happened. We're about to go into the land. And so he sits down and has like a chit chat and he encourages them. And then while he's encouraging them, he predicts their exile into a foreign land because of their disobedience. He predicts that you guys are going to botch it all up. Like you're going to botch the job and you're going to rebel again. And actually, God's speaking to Moses in this section, and he's saying, like, after you die, like, they're going to whore themselves out to the world. And they're going to sin. They're going to rebel. They're going to do everything that I've told them not to do. And that's when, like, the whole curse is sectioned. Like, all these things are going to happen. They're going to go into a foreign land. And that's in chapter 31. And yeah. And it's amazing because something that Moses is trying to portray to them is that, guys, this is not the Torah's fault. These commandments are not too hard for you. They are not far from you. They're very near to you. They're very, listen to the voice of the Lord. Listen to the Spirit of God. Keep yourself pure. Stop worshiping idols. This is not the Torah's fault. It's the problem with what? Your heart. So Deuteronomy 5 is kind of a flashback. He's lamenting. He says, Oh, that there were such a heart in them that they would fear me and keep all of my commandments always. So we already see the commandments. Some of them are very vague. When you see keeping the commandments, I don't want you to think checklist. I want you to think, yes, the commandments that God told them to keep, but also manifesting their vocational calling to be the people that shows the world who their God is. That's why the Torah was given, so that the world would see God through a people. Light to all nations. It's an issue with the heart. And it wasn't God's Torah, it wasn't the commandments, it wasn't the statutes that brought death or sin or curses into the world. No, it was meant to bring blessing. It was the greatest gift, like, in the story. But because of Israel's hearts, they became enslaved to the Torah instead of reaping the blessings of it. That's what Paul says. They became enslaved to it. Their heart. And after this, Moses places his hands on Joshua, and the spirit of wisdom is imparted into Joshua, which is something the commandments and the Torah are supposed to foster and cultivate in a believer's life. And then Moses, in this very climactic scene, he climbs to the top of this mountain. Old man climbs to the very top. And he's alone. And he sits. And he looks out to see the promised land that he will never enter. And he dies. And it's a very, very big scene in the story. And then, like, that's where the story ends. You turn on the page. That's where it's going to end? Like, yeah, that's where it's going to end. And sometimes we pick up the Torah with... with this mindset that this is a piece of legislation only, and we never take the invitation to become part of the story and to be consumed by the story that God's trying to tell us. All we see is a bunch of boring commandments. When there are stories that are intertwined with them, we skip over them. We ignore them. There are commandments in the Torah. These commandments are more than a checklist that fuels arrogance in the form of self-righteousness. There's something more that the Torah is wanting to give you, and that is a heart that It's wanting to provoke you to have a heart that wants to seek after God. Don't murder. It's a good one. Has anyone murdered today? Please don't raise your hand. Good. For some of us, it's difficult. Do not murder. How many of us have checked that off our list today? Feel pretty good about ourselves. Yes, sir. It's more than a checklist. It's a foundational. It's a foundation to fuel and developing a character of God's image in your life. You didn't murder. Good job. Good job. But did you have hate in your heart for a brother? Oh, no. You got me. Oh, man, we're going back to the Sermon on the Mount and the whole thing that Jesus said. Yeah. Did you foster hate in your heart for your brother or sister? Because if you did that, remember the intention? Yeshua, he can back me up on this because this is what he said. You've broken the commandment of murder if you've done that. No, I haven't. I didn't kill him. I just hated him, which, okay, is like that. No, you've broken the commandment of murder. Like that was the intention of the, you've broken the intention of the, you broke the commandment. Like, you can't check that off your list today. You're a murderer. Because that's not an ethic that's part of God's kingdom. There's an underlying spirit within the Torah that we sometimes intentionally dismiss. And that's what Yeshua came to kind of show us. Like, no, this is about something bigger than that. Your heart was not aligned with God and his kingdom. Hey, let's get geeky for a minute. How many commandments are there in the Torah? Did you count them? Everyone's like, oh, what? 613. Did y'all count them? Like, I've seen the list that Monody's wrote out. I didn't read the whole list. This is like 10 years ago. Like, yeah, it looks like them all. 613. Where did we get that number from? I got it because someone told me. I didn't go through and count. That's too much work. It's just, no. And there's actually a great disagreement on that number, by chance, if you're interested. So if you study Torah or read commentaries on the Torah before, you know that 613 is considered the standard count today. But that count was not a widespread standard in the ancient world, by any means. So we have the history of how this number came into being. You guys want to see it? It's kind of neat. We have this history through an ancient document known as the Jewish Talmud. And maybe you've heard of it. So the Talmud is a collection of recordings and conversations between sages and rabbis that was finalized somewhere around 780. Imagine getting together and arguing about the Bible. Has anyone ever done that? Now imagine doing this as a community, like a city. And imagine collecting all of the different opinions and disagreements and fights and arguments and canonizing it. This is what Judaism did. They canonized their arguments. I think that's kind of neat. I mean, that's kind of neat. This is a historical document. It's kind of neat. And it was really like a community's way of hashing out how they're going to keep the Torah. What does it mean when it says to keep Sabbath? Like, as a community, how do they do that? And so this is an ancient document that testifies of an attempt to do that. And it kind of became the standard in Orthodox Judaism today. So everyone good? Okay. So yeah. Yeah, they canonized their arguments up there. It was so funny. So you'll have one rabbi, try to pitch an idea and say he believes this and then you have like another rabbi that comes in and be like yeah but but I disagree with the way that you phrase that and I say this and then you got like you'll see this common you have one rabbi that just comes in the congregation like like a cannonball just bam in the name of rabbi Simeon I disagree with all of that and I say in his name blah this is what I think this commandment is interpreted by so there's a lot of really wacky kind of cool neat arguments that happen in this big old collection concerning the Sabbath It's a good question. So what is work on the Sabbath? So a bunch of rabbis got together and they said, well, let's hash this out. What is work? What is not work? And they hashed it out and the conversation is very extensive. And finally they went to Scripture and they said, well, here's like 40 different precepts when the Torah is talking about the building of the tabernacle and it says don't do this on the Sabbath. So every principle, like carrying a bunch of stuff around, like working the tabernacle, that's against Sabbath. And that's how they defined working on the Sabbath for their community. Neat way of thinking, I guess. We do the same thing today, actually. Did you guys know we do the same thing today? We hash out things to try to... We keep Sabbath by going to church. It's one of the ways that we keep Sabbath. We keep Sabbath by reading the Bible. We keep Sabbath by singing worship music. We keep Sabbath by not mowing the lawn and doing housework. Like, same thing. It's different ways that we're hashing out how to live out God's Word. But we get to read it from this community that was written like 1,500 years ago. So yeah, if you ever hear the word Talmud, you know what it means. That's pretty much all it is. Canonization of people's hashing out what's best for their community. And with that said, I have to give that big disclaimer because there's a lot of misinformation out there.

We're going to go to a tractate, and it's a tractate called Makot. It's a section of this community's writings that deals with law. how do they do law in their community? How do they set up a court system? And what are the punishments for different things? And for some reason, for some reason, in the midst of their discussion and disagreeing and arguing about how they're going to set up a court system in their community, they start talking about 613 commandments. Okay, you everybody caught up? My coat 24A. Rabbi Simlay taught, there were 613 mitzvot stated to Moses in the Torah, consisting of 365 prohibitions, responding to the number of days in the solar year. Okay, just stop for a moment. Some of you are doing the same thing. Like, what? So there's 365 commandments that are negative, thou shalt not. And he's like, and do you know why there are 365? Because that's how many days are in the solar year, of course. So if you ever read this stuff, like, this is what I do. I'm like, what is he talking about? He's blowing smoke. What's he doing? And this is how they communicated. Right? Like it wasn't, yeah. So solar year, that's how many prohibitions are in the Torah, he claims. And 248 positive mitzvah commandments. So 248 commandments that are thou shalt, you should do this. And they correspond to the number of a person's body or limbs in their body. And we're just going to stop for a second. It's a great footnote. that somewhere 1,500 years ago, it was a common thought that there are 248 pieces of your body that can be identified. Is anyone intrigued? At least like this is kind of neat and interesting. Like, what are you, like, I want to be in that Bible study. What are you talking about? Okay, I'll continue. But Rav Hamnuna said, oh, here we go. What is the verse that alludes to this? Where'd you get that from? It is written, Moses commanded us the Torah, an inheritance of the congregation of Jacob. In Jewish Bible, it's Deuteronomy 34.4. In our Bible, it's Deuteronomy 33.4. It's a quote of a verse there. The word Torah, he says, in terms of its numerical value, is 611. The number of mitzvot that were received and taught by Moses, our teacher. So if you don't know this about Hebrew, the numerical system and the alphabet kind of, they run together, they cross over. So every letter can have a numerical value. And so if you take the word for Torah, add up the gematria and numerical value, it equals 611. So Hamnuna is over here like, yeah, you want to know why we have so-and-so commandments? Well, we got 611 because the word equals that numerical value. The number of mitzvot that were received and taught by Moses, our teacher. In addition, there are two commandments. In addition, so there's two more added on to that. They are, I am the Lord your God, and you shall have no other gods. And this is the first two of the ten sayings. The first two of the ten commandments that we heard from the mouth of the Almighty. So you take the 611, the numerical value of Torah, and you add these two, and you get 613. And it's written in a way that it's like, ta-da. Right? And that's kind of neat. And there's other rabbis that came in, and they have different commentary. So there's like lots of different commentaries of like, some of them are logical, some of them are okay. And this was even argued back and forth. Like this wasn't necessarily a standard. So a Jewish scholar, a Jewish sage, Abraham Ibn Ezra, son of Ezra, he says this in his writings, I think from the 1200s, sorry, Some sages enumerate 613 mitzvot in many diverse ways, but in truth there is no end to the number of mitzvot contained in the Torah. So what he's saying is that if you're just looking at the commandment to keep it as a checklist, you can try to count something, but that's not how it was written to be. It was meant to instill wisdom of how to actually walk out and be thoughtful in this world as God would be. So like even though, okay, you build a wall around your house, but don't stop there. Make your kids buckle their seatbelt and put locks in the cabinets. And there's no end to the amount of things that we do to cultivate the kingdom of God. Because every generation has different things, different cultures, different times. There's always new avenues of things that we can do to impart the wisdom of God and his love and his mercy in different ways that we can do this work. So I love that quote. I love that. So there's no end to the number of mitzvot. And if we were to count only the root principles, the number of mitzvot would not even reach 613. So here you go back and forth. Like there's an argument here about this. It wasn't until it seems to be in the 1200s there was a famous rabbi, Rabbi Moshe Mamonides, also known as the Rambam. And he wrote a very famous commentary on the Torah about the intentionality of the commandments and it kind of became a staple in Judaism even today. But in that book he sided with the 613 thing and he wrote out like here are the 613 commandments. But what's kind of neat is like at least a hundred of those commandments are repeats. So even that So how many commandments are in the Torah? I've never counted. 613 is a good number, but that's the history. So I thought that was neat, but it's also neat in the next section of the tractate. And this is really what I wanted to get at. I just wanted to go through that too because I thought it was neat. It's an ancient discussion here between rabbis about boiling down the Torah from over 600 commandments into its foundational principles. And the reason why I'm quoting this specifically is to demonstrate that even in ancient Judaism... The 613 was not a simple checklist that you can just mark off to make yourself appease God. It was never viewed that way. It shouldn't have been viewed that way. And at least some of them understood this when they wrote. No, there's more expected from you than just a checklist. You're supposed to evolve into the image of God on earth. That's your calling. As Christians, we find this ability in the new creation found in Yeshua. But you keep reading this chapter and you go down a little bit in the tractate and this is Rabbi Simlai again. Here we go. Our man. He continues, So he's saying the 613 can be summed up in 11. 11. As it is written in Psalm chapter 15, a psalm of David, Lord, who shall sojourn in your tabernacle? Who shall dwell upon your sacred mountain? He who walks wholeheartedly, works righteousness, speaks truth in his heart, has no slander upon his tongue, nor does evil with his neighbor, nor takes a reproach against his relative, in whose eyes a vile person is despised, and he honors those who fear the Lord. He takes an oath with his own detriment and changes not. He neither gives his money with interest nor takes a bribe against the innocent. He who performs these shall never be moved. These 11 attributes are the ones that facilitate one's entry into the kingdom of God or the world to come in this list. So here they've summed up the Torah. They've summed up the checklist. Listen, if you can do these 11 things, you'll be doing good. This is what you need to do to experience the kingdom of God, to usher in the world to come. Rabbi Simlai's exposition continues saying, Isaiah came and established Israel. and established 613 mitzvot upon six. He got smaller. He who walks righteously and speaks up rightly, he who despises the gain of oppressions, who shakes his hands from holding of bribes, who stops his ears from hearing blood and shuts his eyes from looking upon evil. So here, he's claiming that Isaiah is saying, now there's six things. If you can do these six things, you are cultivating the heart of God on earth. You're cultivating the spirit of an image bearer of God. He continues, Micah came and established the 613 upon three as it is written, it has been told to you, oh man, what is good and what does the Lord require of you? Only to do justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly before your God. So in this perception, he's arguing that, look, in Micah, these are the only three things, if you can do these three things, you're cultivating the image that keeps the entire Torah. Like this is the heart and the wisdom that will allow you to do everything else. Like you'll do everything else, but this is what's actually going to manifest God's will on earth. And then it kind of reverts back to Isaiah again. It says, Isaiah then established 613 mitzvah upon three. Okay. As it is written, it has been told to you, O man, what is good and what does the Lord require? Oh, sorry. Upon, sorry. Isaiah then established the 613 commandments upon two. As it is stated, so says the Lord, observe justice and perform righteousness. If you can do those two things, is the argument here in these Jewish writings, okay? In this Jewish community. The argument is if you can just do these two things, listen, this is the Torah. Like, you're going to do everything else. But if you can just, that's the Torah. Amos came and established the 613 mitzvah upon one. As it is stated, so the Lord says to the house of Israel, seek me and live. Seek me. If you can just seek the Lord, then you'll be able to flourish. And so like a good Hebrew rooster, here comes Rav Naaman here. Rav Naaman bar Yisuk objects to this. He runs in the scene. There's no proof that the verse in Amos is establishing all the mitzvah upon one verse. What are you talking about? Like, here we go. Here it is. Like, what are you talking about? There's no proof of that. Say that Amos is saying, seek me throughout the entire Torah. As the verse does not specify the manner of which one should seek the Lord. Rather say, rather say, and now he's having a platform. He's asserting his own opinion. Rather say, Habakkuk came and established the 613 mitzvah upon one as it is stated, but the righteous person shall live by faith. Not a checklist. Something more than that. Something that actually requires a change within you to be the image bearer of God. Something you can't fake. These were seen as the essence of the Torah when you keep the commandments. This is what you're doing. If you're keeping the commandments without doing these, you're not keeping the Torah according to Judaism. Now, everybody already knows Yeshua did the same thing. And of course, these guys I'm sure were really smart. I side with my king. And Yeshua came in and he said this. It's a conversation. He said, teacher, what is the greatest commandment of the law? What is this? What is it? And Yeshua responds, he says, listen, love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind. This is the first and greatest of all commandments. The second, so they asked him for one, and he's like, it's two. I'm going to give you one and then another. And the second is like it, love your neighbor as yourself. All of the law, not just the law, and all of the prophets. So engulfing all of the future Jewish commentary that was going to come out about the prophets saying what Torah meant, Yeshua just like overwrote. Oh, I love that. It's like all of the law and all of the story of Israel hang on these two commandments. Yeshua takes it a step further. It's not just the law at this point. It's the prophets. It's the fullness of the message of God that are overwrote. that have a foundation in these. If you can do these things, you're manifesting the wholeness of all of the Old Testament, is basically what he's saying. All of the commandments. All those things the prophet said. All of it finds its purpose in one thing. And what is that one thing, according to Yeshua? It's love. Love. And the thing is, when we love God and when we love people, we embody the fullness of the ethic of God's kingdom according to Yeshua. Without it, it doesn't matter how many check boxes you mark. Paul has something to say about that. You're not keeping an ounce of Torah if you're not embodying the love of God that's manifesting it. You're not. It's that simple. That's what the king says.

You're not keeping an ounce. How are you loving the world around you right now? Got all geeky. Let's bring it home. How are we loving the world around us like right now? Are we truly showing God the love with all of our heart? Are we truly showing the world around us the love that God has instilled within us? Because if we're not, if we're not, what are we doing? We are meant to be a receptacle for God's love for creation. You keep kosher. That's awesome. Yeah, I keep kosher. I don't eat that pig. That's good. Yeah. So do vegans. Like, that's special. It doesn't make you special. You didn't do any yard work. I don't do yard work on Sabbath. Wow, that's real good. That was real. You had to work hard not to push that lawnmower. It's what?

Neither did any lazy person. I mean, that does not make you special. It doesn't make you special. to check off a few boxes here and there. It only makes you feel special, and it distracts you, and it causes a type of idolatry that turns your back on the one that you're supposed to be focusing on. The thing about obeying the ethic of the Torah is it's not about you. As followers of Yeshua, we know it's about everyone else. That's what Yeshua said. It's about serving others. It's about having mercy on others. It's about being a slave to all. Oh, we hate it when he says that. A slave to all. A slave to God? I can do that. No, no. A slave to all. Everyone else. It's about forgiving others. It's not about you. Your obedience is ultimately not about you as much as it is about God impacting the world through you. Genesis 1. Image of God. It's about showing the world that God does exist through your obedience to his Torah. It's been almost a year since we started our, because we're doing the foster care fundraiser. It's great.

It's been almost a year since we started our foster and adoption ministry. And it's been awesome. We've had a lot of people involved. It's been great. We currently have two families that are licensed to foster in our fellowship, which is amazing. And I think we have a few more. A couple moved down to South Carolina to start that process. We have a few more that have intentions of doing that. I guess the question is, why is there only two? Why is there only two? I was thinking about something the other day. I saw someone become very upset, and this is actually an older story, it's an older development in our politics, in our country. It's been like this for a while. But they were still upset that homosexual couples were allowed to adopt and do foster care. And they were really upset. And I had to wonder, like were they upset because of religious reasons, or were they upset because they were guilty? Like you have a problem with certain people being foster parents with kids, where you know if we didn't have any kids in the foster care system that needed a home, maybe that wouldn't happen. Why are there only two families currently registered in this fellowship? When we come to sensitive topics like this and other sensitive topics, gosh, we're quick to say things and find excuses. I know I am. I don't know if I could do it. I don't know if I could do foster care. Golly, that sounds hard. What if? This is when I actually get a lot of Man, I feel like I would just get too attached. And we say these things sometimes without even realizing that they didn't have a choice.

They didn't have a choice. And maybe they need someone to get attached to them. Meanwhile, the secular world is showing off, doing a better job at stepping up to the plate, doing the things that we say we are obedient to God for. And it's not just foster care. Gosh, there's so many opportunities of ministry. Leadership here, vision of fit, gosh, we got big visions for where this community, where we feel God drawing us. Sometimes the visions I look and I'm like, gosh, God, enable us to be able to make that big of an impact in our local community, not just with foster care, the housing community. Goodness, that would just be amazing for us to actually like be a fellowship that God uses to do things. And people say, and I've said this too, whenever an opportunity for me to sacrifice of myself comes, we say things like, oh, I need to pray about that. Anybody? Is that anyone else's favorite? It's one of my favorite excuses. I'll come out and say it. I need foster care. I need to pray about that. And I mean to tell you, no, you don't. No. Do you want to know why? Psalm 68, 5. So this is speaking about God, our God that we serve. It says, a father to the fatherless, a defender of the widows. He is a God in his holy dwelling. He is a God that sets the lonely in families. God sets the lonely in the families after they get done praying about it. No, there's a need. We want to follow the Torah as a type of checklist in our life. We want to follow the Torah in a way that shows the world who our God is and the character of our God. There you go. There you go. James 1.27.

Here's a good one. Religion... that God our Father accepts. So do you want to be part of a religion that our God our Father accepts? I know I'm putting all you guys in the spotlight right now. I'm with you. Because it's not just about foster care. This is every aspect of what we're called to be and do as the hands and feet of Jesus in our life. I want to be a part of a faith, or at least I signed up to be a part of a faith that God our Father accepts as pure and faultless. And this is what James says, to look after the orphans and the widows in their distress. The people that don't have choices. The people who don't have choices. You look out for them. You know, the people, the slaves, the slaves in Egypt, like God did for them. You look out for the people who don't have choices. And keep oneself from being polluted by the world. And I love that. So James makes sure he groups pollution of the world up with those things of looking out for the widows and the orphans. And we always love to separate that, like to keep oneself from being polluted by the world. We see that and we're like, yeah, don't do drugs, right? Like, yeah, that's bad. Don't listen to secular music. Don't hang out with those wrong people. I remember when we were growing up, we were going to a Baptist church, and there was a lot of pollution in the world. Simpsons off the table. Like, never saw an episode in my life like that. Hell bound. Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. There was a window where those were satanic and demonic. I remember this. Smurfs, I think a very small window. Smurfs of the devil. Like, I don't know. Maybe I'll believe that. I don't know. I don't know. It's been a while. But... You know what being polluted by the world actually looks like? Like, that might be part of it, but it means convincing yourself that you don't actually have to be an active part of God's kingdom, and you can just live for yourself. That's what being polluted by the world means. It means being like, it means convincing yourself that you're better off being like the priest and the Levite in the story of the Good Samaritan. You're too righteous to help. You're already close with God. You already work in his temple. I don't need to go over there and mess. He might be dead, be made unclean. That's just not worth it. It would be an inconvenience for me to serve someone else in any capacity. The cost is too great. That's what being polluted by the world looks like. That's what, when you turn your back to the ethic of the kingdom that we're called to be. And if we find ourselves saying that, the cost is too great. I'm too righteous to help. I don't need to do that. I feel like the only response would be, would be asking ourselves if we knew what we were signing up for when we pledged allegiance to Jesus. Did we truly know what the depth of that meant? Maybe if we're going back to foster care, because that's something that we do here, maybe you can't open your home due to regulations, you rent an apartment, I don't know. You can still be involved in actually impacting the kids in this local community. We have a ministry that's set up around that. Talk to Ben and Catherine Cohen. They're kind of amazing. We have a whole group here. They organized school supplies for the foster kids. So just so you guys know, when a child is taken into foster care, they are taken from the family that they know, from the home that they know, the friends that they know, and they're taken from their school. Everything that is in their life routine is stripped from them by the state for the betterment of the child is what is justified as being, and most of the time it is. And then within a week, the foster parents have to get them signed up for a new school that's closer to them. So you're ripped away from your parents, you're ripped away from your friends, you don't have your bed anymore, you don't have your teddy bear, you don't have your mommy, you don't have your daddy, your brothers and sisters may or may not be with you. You're stripped from your school, your favorite teacher that you saw every day, and now, now you get to walk into a new school. Oh, your backpack's at home and it didn't get packed. Oh, so you don't even have your backpack and your notebook and your pencils anymore. The supplies that we put in that box back there will arrive at children in that situation, in this community. And I'm very, very proud at the ministry that we have here and the people that led it up to do that. You can still be involved in the things that we're doing and trying to impact the foster care system here. If you want more details on that, Ben and Catherine Cohen, they're amazing. Sorry, that was a need be said. I mean, it is what it is. The thing about keeping Torah... is it isn't just about the outside. The Bible tells us that we need to check what? Check what? It's our heart. Where's your heart at? That's what Israel didn't get. That's what Moses was telling them before he died. I know you're going to mess this up because you have not checked your heart. And then what happened? The book of Joshua tells us about a people who struggled onward for listening to the voice of the Lord. And then the book of Judges is when Israel hit rock bottom. Like the book of Judges is what it looks like when you have forgotten the character of your God. The story of the whole Old Testament is about human beings that struggle with their flesh so much, and they cannot get their hearts in the right place to actually consume the will of God, His Torah, and become the image bearers they were meant to be. The prophets understood this. They speak of this. Ezekiel 36, 25, it's a prophecy. It says, I will sprinkle clean water on you, and you will be clean. I will cleanse you from all of your impurities and all of your idols. I will give you a new heart and a new spirit. And I will remove the heart of stone and give you a heart that beats flesh. So will my spirit in you and move you to follow my decrees and be careful to keep my laws. Actually do it. And this wasn't talking about Sabbath. We'd love to go to that. No, Isaiah 1 says Israel was keeping Sabbath just fine and them thinking that all they needed to do was keep toward the way that they were was detestable for God. This is speaking about something more. than just these things. Jeremiah speaks of the same direction about a time when the hearts of people would finally bear God's Torah, that his people would live out his Torah and his will. This is the covenant I will make with the people of Israel after that time, declares the Lord. I will put my law in their minds and I will inscribe it upon their hearts. Their heart will change. I will be their God and they will be my people. Again, this isn't talking about feast days. Isaiah and Amos both testify that Israel was doing just fine in regard of some outside ritual stuff. No, this is speaking about something bigger. They were not showing God's justice and love and mercy in the world. Their hearts were bound up as stone. Isaiah speaks of a king that would come, a suffering servant, to which Israel, the people of God, would be reconstituted in an eternal reign of God's goodness and his kingdom. This is all flooding and building to this ultimate climax that we find in the New Testament, where we see Yeshua, the visible glory of God, the perfect image of God on earth, shows us what it looks like to actually keep Torah. And the religious hated it. Now, those sinners, those Gentiles, they need to stay outside the camp, outside our group. Now, the checklist of commandments is how we show we are righteous and who our God is. Look, we tithe our mint every single day in our herb garden. Check this out. We're faithful to Torah. Yeshua looks at him and is like, "Good job on these really minor things. You tithed your garb garden. You're missing out on the weight of your matters, like the things that actually matter, like the love of God being manifest. Are you ignoring those? The foundational fuelment that if there is a checklist gives it vitality in life?"

Yeshua said no. Yeshua said the meek will inherit the earth. Yeshua said that we need to have faith as a child, someone who does not determine good and evil for themselves. Yeshua said, God's kingdom is now, and we're the representatives of it, and we need to humble ourselves and be a slave to all, everyone. And Yeshua said, follow me in my example to show you how God's love is manifest. Yeshua said, follow me to the cross. That's what our king taught. Yes, we're supposed to keep the commandments of God, of course. Yeshua did. But sometimes, sometimes we forget about the foundational principles that make God's tour perfect. as David claims it is, and we make it something it's not. Shalom, I'm Matthew Vanderels and I hope you enjoyed this message. Founded in Truth exists to build a community that bears the image of God and lives the redeemed life only Yeshua gives. If this message impacted you or if this ministry has been a blessing to you, we would love to hear from you. Send us a message through our contact form on our website and let us know how God has used this ministry to edify your faith and relationship with Him. Don't forget to subscribe by clicking here. And if you'd like to donate to this ministry and be a part of what God is doing through it, you can donate through our website at www.foundingatruth.com or by clicking here. We thank you for your continued support and we look forward to next time. Shalom.

For more on this and other teachings, please visit us at Foundedintruth.com

EMAIL: Info@foundedintuth.com

FACEBOOK: facebook.com/foundedintruth

WEBSITE: <https://www.foundedintruth.com>

Google: <https://g.co/kgs/az3iPeM>

